Kill 2,500 Nazis in Factory
District of City of Stalingrad

Many German Tanks Destroyed by Reinforced
Russian Troops

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Monday, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Russians for the second successive day held firm yesterday against the smashing German drive inside Stalingrad, killing about 2,500 enemy soldiers and destroying forty-five tanks in the two main attack areas, the Soviet midnight communique said today.

The major battle raged in the area of a factory, presumably the Red Barricade Gun Works, in the northwestern part of the battered city, where the Germans previously had driven a wedge into the Soviet defenses.

The communique said the Red army repulsed all attacks in this sector, disabling and burning seventeen tanks, and killed about 1,000 German troops.

Another Major Action
Another major action was in progress in an unidentified part of the city, where the Germans were said to have attacked repeatedly with strong infantry and tank forces supported by aircraft.

"In fighting on this sector," the communique said, "our troops destroyed twenty-eight tanks, eight guns, ten mortar batteries, ten trucks and about three battalions (approximately 1,500) enemy infantry."

The Russians sent fresh tanks and troops into the Stalingrad battle in an effort to press back the German wedge in the factory area, formerly one of the main Soviet strongholds in the city. Most of the German tanks in this spearhead already were reported destroyed.

Northwest of Stalingrad, where a major battle has been going on for weeks, fighting was restricted mainly to engagements of local importance and reconnaissance operations, the communique said.

The Russians, however, were said to have repulsed one German counterattack and killed about 300 enemy troops in one sector. In another part of this front, Soviet scouts wiped out 120 Germans.

More Germans Killed
To the south in the Mordok area of the Caucasus the Germans launched several attacks against Russian positions, but all were hurled back with about 500 Germans killed.

Heavy fighting also continued in the Black Sea area south-east of Novorossiysk, where the enemy broke through to a highway. The Russians were putting up stubborn resistance.

BACK HOME AGAIN

As a mission teacher, Brother Anthony who was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and taught there many years, was in Hong Kong when it fell to the Japs. Along with many other Americans, he was interned. He is shown wearing a garment made from a sheet smuggled to him by a Chinese nurse while he was held by the Japs. He has been convalescing in New York City since his arrival on the diplomatic ship Gripsholm.

Manpower Laws May Be Passed At Early Date

Senate Hearings on Four Bills To Start
Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Some answer to knotty problems involved in any compulsory manpower legislation, including questions of pay scales and the individuals rights of workers and management, may be forthcoming this week.

Powder Harper, deputy chairman of the War Manpower Commission, said today that members of the management-labor committee which advises the commission on policy would issue their initial statement before the middle of the week.

In addition, Chairman Paul V. McNutt, who has declared legislation empowering the government to assign and confine workers to war-time tasks inevitable, is to testify before the Senate Military Committee on at least four bills for manpower control.

Officials of the commission, one of the groups immediately concerned with framing legislation for submission to Congress, listed these problems—on which they said no agreement had been reached—as among the foremost:

List Major Problems
If the government is given authority to place each worker in the job where he can do most for the war effort, and if it shifts a man to a lower-pay job, should his pay be cut to that of the new job?

If workers have to be transferred (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

'Hel-En-Wings' Has Great
Day in Vicinity of Rekato Bay

By OLEN CLEMENTS
AN ADVANCED U. S. ARMY BOMBER BASE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Oct. 10—(Delayed)—(AP)—The Hel-en-Wings' flying Fortress was hot after a Japanese seaplane off Rekato Bay in the Solomons recently when somebody took a pot shot at her from below.

Pilot Capt. Carl Wuertele, Denver, Colo., and his crew of eight looked down and saw something to delight their eyes—four Jap naval planes anchored on the water.

The Fortress crew forgot their quarry—which by now had darted into a cloud anyway.

Captain Wuertele brought his big ship, named for his wife, Helen, down low over the water and the gunners went to work.

Lieut. Hugh Mahoney, Corpus Christi, Texas, opened up with the nose guns and set one enemy plane afire as the Fortress dropped to within fifty feet of the water. The other guns poured lead into the rest of the anchored aircraft as the big Fortress roared on and then zoomed up and away.

Japs Take Cover
Seven more times the Fortress swooped over the anchored Jap planes. Three Jap airmen who had been wading to their anchored ships turned back and fled into a nearby coconut grove.

Each time as the Fortress passed over, Sgt. Robert Lowrie, the tail-gunner, strafed machinegun nests on shore. Finally, one of the nests stopped shooting. By this time the Americans' ammunition was almost exhausted.

Anybody hurt? called Captain Wuertele as the Fortress started for home. There was no answer.

As the big ship roared away the Jap plane in the clouds, which had been joined by another, attacked the Fortress. The Hel-en-Wings' guns chattered again. One of the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

PRIZE AIRFIELD ON GUADALCANAL HELD BY U. S.

This is the much-fought-over airfield on Guadalcanal in the Solomons. United States marines are shown above filling in bomb craters after a Jap raid. A big land battle is imminent, now that the Japs have landed reinforcements and United States Army combat units. It has just been revealed, are in action with the marines. So important do the Japs consider Guadalcanal, they are risking battleships for the first time in this area. This is an official United States Marine Corps photo.

233 Lives Lost In Renewal of U-Boat Attacks

Enemy Steps Up Submarine Warfare in Western Atlantic

(By The Associated Press)
At least 233 persons were dead or missing in an intensive stepping up of submarine warfare last week which claimed seven United Nations merchant vessels in the Western Atlantic, official announcements disclosed, but 280 others were rescued and safely landed at Allied ports.

The most spectacular torpedoing occurred when U-boats ranged into Canadian coastal waters to sink the ferry steamship Caribou, in that area's greatest announced maritime disaster of the war. One hundred and thirty-seven men, women and children perished in the sinking, the tenth reported in those waters.

Two Freighters Lost
Southward, the Brazilian government reported the loss of two freighters to undersea raiders operating off the South American coast. The sinkings marked Brazil's twentieth and twenty-first marine losses since early this year.

Reports from West Africa, where United States troops recently have been hunting and R.A.P. patrols are hunting enemy submarines along the West African bulge, point to launching of an intensified U-boat campaign to cut off the Allied supply line around the Cape of Good Hope to the Red Sea. Announcements revealed that a fleet of new-type U-boats, driven from the warship-patrolled North Atlantic, now are being supplied by bases in neutral territory, presumably the French Ivory coast, and are readying for a large-scale campaign in North Africa and the Middle East.

Submarines Not Winning
Prime Minister Churchill, noted that August and September were the "least bad" months since January in losses to enemy undersea craft.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, war shipping administrator and chairman of the U. S. Maritime Commission, declared that U-boats "aren't winning" their warfare on "United Nations shipping and that the number of Axis submarines in the world's waters is growing in a dangerously month by month."

Mrs. O'Leary's Cow Started Chicago
Fire, Son of Animal's Owner Says

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 18 (AP)—Mrs. O'Leary's cow DID start the $197,000 Chicago conflagration that made history, the son of the man who butchered the famed bovine arsonist, declared today.

Thus, Joseph A. Kleker, Indianapolis butcher and grocer, refuted the "bums in a barn" theory started by members of the retired firemen's association of Chicago recently.

"Not only did my father buy Mrs. O'Leary's cow, and a calf with it, after the fire," said Kleker, "but he butchered them, and for years he had their skins."

Kleker explained the "bums" currently credited with starting the fire were indirectly responsible for it, but only because they wanted cream for the coffee they were drinking, and Mrs. O'Leary, just before midnight, went to the barn to milk the cow to get the cream.

THREE JAPANESE CRUISERS BOMBED BY ALLIES AT BUIN

Several Other Vessels in Harbor Believed Damaged
in Raid upon Important Enemy Base

By C. YATES McDANIEL
GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Monday, Oct. 19 (AP)—Allied heavy bombers, supporting the embattled American forces on Guadalcanal, made four large-scale attacks Sunday night on Japanese naval units at Buin, enemy base on Bougainville island in the North Solomons, and were believed to have hit three cruisers and several other vessels, a communique said today.

Twenty-two tons of bombs were dropped, including many thousand pounders, after flares had been dropped to illuminate the crowded harbor.

Other Ships Attacked
The cruisers were believed to have been hit during the second attack. Shortly afterwards another wave of bombers attacked a large seaplane tender and some cargo vessels, with unobserved results, and in the final attack a cargo vessel was strafed and set on fire and seven flying boats were destroyed or damaged.

"The last raid saw enemy vessels burning fiercely as the result of earlier attacks," the communique said.

This was the second successive night that Buin had been attacked. During both attacks the airdrome, which is being used by the Japanese in the Solomons operations, was bombed heavily.

Other Allied planes ranged the Japanese communication lines around New Britain and New Guinea, attacking an enemy vessel reporting vessel in Lorengau harbor, in Manus Island northeast of New Guinea, and destroying a seaplane on the water off the south coast of New Britain.

Set Fire to Dock
They also bombed and set fire to a dock and a village on Pilelo island in that area.

Meanwhile, ground fighting in New Guinea was intensified as Australian jungle troops pushed on north of Templeton's crossing to ward the Japanese base at Kokoda, less than twelve miles away.

For the first time since the Australians started their push across the rugged Owen Stanley mountains about three weeks ago, they met Japanese counterattacks. All the attacks were repulsed, however, and the advance continued.

"Our ground forces have forced the enemy north of Templeton," the communique said. "In sharp contrast, during the day enemy casualties were relatively heavy."

"We captured mortars, light machineguns and other equipment. The enemy launched several local counterattacks in the evening which were repulsed with heavy losses."

The ground operations were supported by bombing attacks on the Wairoa area through which the Japanese supply line runs.

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Reuters, British news agency, quoted the newspaper Handels Tidningen of Goteborg today as reporting that all American citizens in Norway were arrested on Thursday. There was no confirmation of the report in Stockholm, Reuters said.

Such an action by the German occupation authorities would be similar to that taken recently against American nationals in occupied France.

Invaders Concentrating Troops and Bombarding Marines with Big Guns

Hope To Soften Up American Positions with Artillery and Aerial Attacks; Fourteen Bombers Shot Down by Americans; Japanese Concentrating Ships in the Buin-Shortland Area

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Holding in leash for the time being their heavy land forces on Guadalcanal island, the Japanese are concentrating on efforts to soften up the vital American positions there with artillery and aerial bombardment, the navy reported today, at a heavy price in planes.

The United States fighter planes and anti-aircraft batteries wiped out completely a flight of fourteen bombers which the Japanese flew against the airfield and shore installations Saturday morning and downed two of the eight accompanying fighters.

ONE AMERICAN PLANE LOST
But Saturday afternoon the Japanese came back with fifteen bombers and a number of fighters and this time had better success. The Navy communique said only that one bomber "was reported probably destroyed." One American plane was lost during the two raids.

The sixteen planes shot down in the morning raid brought to 307 the toll of Japanese plane losses in the Solomons but while this enemy attrition was important, it appeared that the success or failure of the United States marines and soldiers to hold on there would hinge on the outcome of the land fighting still to be joined.

The communique expressed the Navy's belief "that enemy troops and equipment are being disposed for a strong assault against our airfield," this vital position being still held despite the bombardments. At the same time the communique said there had been no reports of fresh Japanese landings since Thursday.

Japs Massing Ships
But "heavy concentration of enemy ships are still reported in the Buin-Shortland area," Solomon waters about 300 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, the communique continued.

In withholding the launching of their land offensive against the airfield, it appeared that the Japanese might be awaiting additional men and supplies from this quarter as well as completing the disposition of their artillery and other equipment already ashore.

Meanwhile the American defenders were not idle. Army Flying Fortresses and navy and marine corps planes, the latter presumably operating from the Guadalcanal airfield, made repeated attacks Friday on the Japanese and their equipment at their base on the northwestern end of the island.

Damage Two Destroyers
While the situation in the Solomons claimed primary attention, the navy in a second communique reported severe damage done to two Japanese destroyers by Army B-26 Marauder bombers northwest of Kiska in the Aleutian Islands Friday. Five hits were scored on one and four on the other. One of the bombers was lost; the navy did not say how many took part in the attack.

The destroyers may well have been sunk but this was not claimed, the bombers apparently having been unable to carry long enough to find out. The communique said that "heavy explosions and fire resulted and when last seen both ships were stopped and burning and the crews were abandoning ship."

The Solomons communique did not cover all of the information received here from the field, according to a navy spokesman who preferred to remain anonymous. He explained that some additional information was being withheld because it would prove valuable to the enemy at this stage.

Communique number 158 dealing with the Solomons situation follows:

"South Pacific: (All dates below are east longitude).
"1. The Japanese are continuing to bomb our airfield and shore positions on Guadalcanal island. It is believed that enemy troops and equipment are being disposed for a strong assault against our airfield.
"2. There have been no reports of enemy landings on Guadalcanal since October 15th, but heavy concentration of enemy ships are still reported in the Buin-Shortland area.
"3. On October 16th army Flying Fortresses and navy and marine corps aircraft repeatedly attacked the enemy troops and equipment which have been assembled in force on the northwestern end of Guadalcanal.
"4. On October 17th:
"(A) During the early morning about fourteen enemy bombers escorted by eight fighters attacked our airfield and shore positions. United States fighters and anti-aircraft batteries reported the destruction of all of the bombers and two of the fighters.
"(B) During the early afternoon another group of about fifteen enemy bombers and a number of fighters carried out (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

DES MOINES, N. M., Oct. 18 (AP)—A four-motored army bomber crashed atop Sierra Grande peak in northeastern New Mexico killing at least eleven persons, it was reported today.

Two shepherds found the wreckage and summoned Union county officers and state patrolmen. The sheep herders said the plane crashed about 5 a. m. (Eastern War Time) Saturday.

State Patrolman T. A. Griffith said eleven bodies were found in the wreckage, which was strewn for a distance of 150 yards along the mountain slope.

People Travel Too Much, Jeffers Says on Visit to Omaha, Nebraska

OMAHA, Oct. 18 (AP)—William M. Jeffers, national rubber conservation director, said in an interview here today "people travel too much and they must stop it."

The Union Pacific Railroad president arrived by army bomber last night to spend the week end with his family and said he would leave tomorrow for Washington to resume "the job of keeping the country on rubber."

"People who don't have to travel should stay home," Jeffers said. "Of course it is going to hurt. Some people and some areas are going to be hurt more than others. But a lot of boys are going away right

14 Lives Lost In Plane Crash

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Fifteen persons were killed today when an RAF plane undershot an airfield while landing and crashed near a railway station.

Men, women and children leaving trains scattered wildly as the plane nosed over and burst into flames. The place where the crash occurred was not disclosed.

Three women, three children and a number of service men were believed to have been included in the casualties.

Eleven persons were killed in a similar accident October 5.

Vichy Naturalizes 500 Gestapos To Help Round Up French Workers

By RICE YAHNER
LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—In a desperate move to meet Adolf Hitler's demand for French specialists to work in German war plants, the Vichy government was reported today to have naturalized 500 agents of the Gestapo to help round up workers in unoccupied France.

This report was circulated by the official news agency of the fighting French.

The German secret policemen, having worked for two years in occupied France, were said to have been given citizenship rights so as to operate under full Vichy auspices not only in rounding up the workers but in combatting unrest and disorders such as marked last week's efforts to collaborate in this way with Germany.

Work with Laval
The Gestapo men were to be sent into the unoccupied zone in small flying squads which were to cooperate with Chief of State Laval's legionnaires and members of the pro-Nazi French popular front headed by Jacques Doriot, the fighting French said.

The London Times reported yesterday that eighty automobiles had been allocated to Gestapo agents for use at Lyon.

Explosions Set Great Fires at Fredericksburg

Four Large Storage Tanks Ablaze, Others in Danger

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 18 (P)—Explosions at four large storage tanks fired thousands of gallons of gasoline and threatened today sections of this historic city whose water supply was cut off two days ago by damaging river floods. Families were removed from fifty homes near the flames.

Three of the tanks, ranging in capacity from 80,000 to more than 110,000 gallons, were ignited last night. Another caught fire today. A Standard Oil fire-fighting crew was called from Norfolk in an effort to save three other tanks nearby.

Firemen from Fredericksburg and a half-dozen other communities stood by during the day to spring into action should the fire spread to adjacent property. Some of the ill and invalid in the section had to be evacuated in ambulances.

Gasoline Fire Spreads

The tanks are located on the banks of the Rappahannock river, which ravaged the city Friday with a record-breaking forty-five foot flood. Partially submerged, some of the gasoline had leaked downstream where in some unexplained manner it ignited and spread fire back to the tanks.

Receding waters disclosed the body of Nathan Gardner, 18-year-old Fredericksburg truck driver, who had been missing since Thursday. His truck was washed from the road by a flooding branch which carried his body a half-mile away. This was the second death in Virginia floods last week.

Electric service, suspended Thursday night when water covered Virginia Electric and Power Co. generators to a depth of eighteen feet, was resumed at noon today and residents of this city of 10,000, site of the home of the mother of George Washington and of other pre-revolutionary shrines, busied themselves clearing away flood debris.

"Some Millions" Damages

Joel Rowe, general manager of the Free Lance Star, afternoon daily, made a survey of the flood damage today and estimated that it would run into "some millions."

The city's principal business street was knee deep in silt. The waters rose so rapidly and business men had so little warning they were able to move only a small part of their stocks to upper floors before the water swept in. Grocery, clothing, furniture, 5 and 10 and confectionery stores were the hardest hit. It will be several days before they can reopen.

Officials of the Sylvania Corporation, employing 1,800 persons in the manufacture of cellulose, described their loss as "tremendous. Damage to cloth at the Lafayette Plants Manufacturing Company was possibly $100,000, its officials reported. The O. & H. Manufacturing Company said also that its damage to piece goods and machinery was heavy.

Guard Against Typhoid

The five typhoid inoculation stations established here Friday have been open continuously, with city health authorities urging all residents to accept the protection of typhoid serum. Authorities expressed the hope that water supply to homes could be resumed sometime during the night. Residents have been boiling drinking water.

A number of homes in the low-lying sections were damaged. Many persons who moved to churches when the flood came spent today cleaning the mud from their houses and drying soaked furniture.

Many oil burners and stokers were put out of commission by flooded cellars in homes which otherwise escaped the high waters and these residents expressed fear a cold spell would come before they could get their heating plants repaired.

Two Schools Closed

Two schools, the Lafayette Elementary School and the negro school, will be unable to open tomorrow but classes will be resumed at James Monroe high. Water rose to the second story of the negro school.

City streets looked as if they had been shelled, some of the flood-eroded ditches and gullies being three feet wide.

The Free Lance Star, which was unable to publish Friday or Saturday, got out a special flood edition as soon as electric power was available this afternoon.

Hundreds of automobiles of sight-seers were added to the already heavy traffic in this vicinity today and kept police busy untangling traffic jams.

The main attacks, however, were directed at Japanese feeder bases in the Solomons area where extensive operations were carried out Saturday.

Russians Repulse

Russian Tommy-gunners penetrated into enemy lines at one point, destroying ten fortified positions and killing about 100 Germans.

The danger to Stalingrad remained great as the battle neared the end of its second month, but the midday communiqué said all new German assaults in the city were repulsed and the Red army was standing firm again after four successive retreats made when the Germans mounted their fierce new assaults beginning Wednesday.

Northwest of the city, the Russians dug slightly deeper into the German flank, capturing some fortified positions.

Factory Identified

(The factory about which the battle revolved in north Stalingrad was identified as the Red Barricade Gun Shop by the German high command which said resistance finally was broken in "all the works" and that the adjoining section of the city was cleared of opposing troops. A German broadcast, quoting "competent quarters," however, said the Russians still held the southeastern corner of the factory Saturday night.

(The German communiqué said that Russian formations encircled northwest of the tank factory in the northern suburb of Spartakovka also had been wiped out, while the news broadcast said a second group along the Volga embankment in hopeless position, exposed to incessant crossfire, and unable to retreat across the Volga or receive reinforcements.

(The Russians used artificial fog in an attempt to ferry special reinforcements into the city, but German aircraft dived through the smoke with such effect that the ferrying operation was of limited success.

(The Vichy radio claimed that Stalingrad was "almost entirely in German hands" but Vichy reports have been highly inaccurate.)

German Losses Heavy

The Russians declared they were steadily draining the lifeblood from this latest of Hitler's offensives, reminiscent of his desperate last stab at Moscow in October last year. The first three days cost him 150 tanks, they said.

The Germans who advanced steadily, but slowly, during these first three days by concentrating tremendous power in a small sector in North Stalingrad, now appeared to face another period of pitched battles with little if any likely gain, the Russians said.

But to preserve the heavy superiority in men and machines that made this advance possible in a selected sector the Germans were reported bringing up fresh forces daily, and their numbers engaged now appeared to exceed the five divisions (75,000 men) previously used in this one wedge.

One reason the Red army continued to stand up after fifty-five days of ferocious air and artillery attack at Stalingrad was made known by the disclosure that they had maintained a two-mile pontoon bridge across the Volga despite the most furious efforts of the Germans to blast it out of existence with bomb, shell and mortar fire.

Bridge Helps Russians

Made of planks spread across empty gasoline drums, Red Star, the army newspaper, said this Volga lifeline had permitted the crossing of at least seven battalions of troops, along with arms and supplies, at a critical juncture of the battle and had permitted the evacuation of 28,000 inhabitants and all wounded.

Built last month and already maintained for twenty-five days, the bridge is still in use at night, Red Star declared.

Engineers constructed it with material ready at hand, using fifty-two anchors made from worn tractor engines and other blocks of heavy scrap metal, and fashioning it in separate links easily replaced.

The Germans bombed it twenty-seven times from Sept. 18 to Oct. 10 with squadrons of from four to seventeen planes which dropped 740 bombs and thousands of incendiaries, the paper said, but only twice did the bombs hit the bridge and the three damaged links were replaced in twelve hours. Two shells also hit the bridge but the damage was slight.

Another dramatic crossing by boat was described by an Ivestia correspondent who said passengers were not permitted to speak aloud or smoke and were warned they might have to swim the last part of the distance.

Dogs Swim River

As the west bank was approached the roar of battle was so terrifying, he said, that frightened dogs could be seen jumping into the river and swimming across.

Headquarters of Maj. Gen. Alexei Rodionov, commander of a division of guards who defend Stalingrad has been here, were said by the correspondent to be in a dugout near the riverfront with the water on one side and pillboxes on the other.

About the factory battleground in North Stalingrad, the German efforts were directed to widening their wedge. The lines still ran close to a workers' settlement which the Germans occupied but behind which the Russians had reformed their lines.

Field dispatches said Red army men manning long-barreled, arm-piercing rifles sniped at German tanks engaging in duels with Russian tanks whipping through the streets and across factory yards.

German tanks still intact were described as threshing from side to side in an effort to find weak spots in the sides of the pocket.

Americans Face Heavy Odds in Desert Battles

Meet Superior Axis Forces, but Do Great Work, Strickland Says

By THOBURN WIAIT

CAIRO, EGYPT, Oct. 18 (P)—Gen. Aubrey C. Strickland, chief of the United States fighter command in the Middle East, said today his fliers are up against superior Axis forces in nearly every fight but that they "are determined to whittle the enemy down to their size and then dispose of those left."

"Some time ago I predicted a brilliant future for my boys but they are better than I ever expected and their enthusiasm is more than equalled by their performance in combat," he said in an interview.

"There hasn't been a time when our bunch hasn't met any combat that was offered and they have forced combat many many times."

Messerschmitt 109s usually fly in groups of twenty to fifty plus, the general said, and they don't offer combat unless they greatly outnumber their adversaries.

Germans Show Weakness

"It's a German characteristic," the general said. "If he is met with equal numbers and equal advantages he invariably leaves the scene of battle."

He told of one time when twelve of his fliers protecting fighter-bombers ran into twenty Messerschmitt 109s.

"They turned into them immediately and fought a twenty-minute battle which allowed the fighter-bombers to perform their mission and return without a loss."

General Strickland said the planes' equipment was "holding up fine" and praised the work of ground crews.

He is confident of ultimate victory.

The general spoke with a southern drawl which harks back to Bragg, Ala., where he was born forty-seven years ago. A former football player at Fort Deposit, Ala., high school, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the army, he appeared in excellent condition.

Asked for the names of pilots who had done outstanding jobs, the general replied:

Praises Group Commander

But he did pay high tribute to Lieut. Col. Frank H. Mears, 31, of Monrovia, Calif., a group commander who was present during the interview.

Mears blushed and was inclined to say nothing about his achievements but in response to questions Mears said the biggest thrill he ever had was when three squadrons were ordered to attack three enemy airdromes.

Mears said American fliers in the desert were in better physical condition than when they first came from the states. He said the men enjoyed anything from home, especially mail.

Fortress Crew

Jap planes dropped into the bay. The other turned tail and fled.

Far out at sea, Sergeant Lowrie nonchalantly walked into the pilot cabin and said:

"Look, I have been shot."

Sergeant Wounded

The sergeant was bleeding profusely from leg and stomach wounds caused when an explosive shell burst almost in his lap.

Lieut. James Copeland, the plane's bombardier, a Timmonsville, S. C. man and a Phi Beta Kappa of Duke university, and co-pilot Lieut. Robert Simpson, Palo Alto, Calif., treated the injuries, which were only flesh wounds.

The Hel-en-Wings got sixty-six bullets in her during the fight but two days later went back to Rekata Bay and dropped bombs on enemy shore installations.

Strafing with a B-17 bomber is pretty dangerous business. The exploits of this particular plane, though, made the commanding officer of this base, Col. L. G. Saunders, so happy he commended the whole crew. Captain Wuerstle also asked for a decoration for Sergeant Lowrie.

Others in the crew were Sergeants Edgar Phillips, Southampton, N. Y., and Norman Watson, Hinton, Corp. Jennings Beckwith, Spring Lake, N. J., and Pvt. Darwin Galesburg, Ill.

The Hel-en-Wings was the first B-17 to land at Guadalcanal.

Netherlands Gets

many and the occupied countries to strike at the most important war production and essential civilian activities where the need has been shown.

The policy statement included among the "basic national standards" for induction of women into the labor market these comments: "Women should be admitted on a basis of equality with men to all forms of training and to employment in any occupations in which they are or can be fitted," and should have "free access of foremen, supervisory and technical jobs."

Wage rates should be determined "on the basis of the work performed, irrespective of sex."

Women should not work more than six days and a total of forty-eight hours in any week except in emergencies.

Manpower Laws

ported to new jobs, who is to make the arrangements and pay the bill, and what is to be done about families of the workers?

If union workers are shifted from a closed shop to an open shop, or non-union workers are shifted from an open shop to a closed shop, what is to be done about unionization?

What hiring and firing rights are to be left to the employer? If a man is shifted to a new job, what about his rights in his old job when he returns to it?

Labor To Take Stand

Union officials who declined use of their names said labor would call for more positive use of present government powers more coordination of military and civilian manpower authority before adoption of compulsory job-freeing legislation. They argued that the president and various agencies already have authority to handle the problems by coordinated action.

Farm state congressmen and farm organizations contend that the manpower problem is even more pressing for agriculture than for industry in view of the draft and the loss of farm labor to higher paying factory jobs.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard conferred yesterday with Major General Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director and representatives of the Manpower Commission and farm groups. At that meeting informed officials, who can not be named, said there were these developments:

A tentative agreement was reached under which draft boards would classify workers on dairy and livestock farms as essential. The basis for such deferment would be that one worker is required for every eight cows or the equivalent in other livestock.

A proposal for granting federal subsidies to farm owners to help them counter the higher wage bids of industry also was considered. Economic Director James F. Byrnes granted Wickard broad authority Friday to regulate wages. The question in agriculture is not one of excessive pay but of bringing farm wages nearer to the level of factory pay and therefore involves possible subsidy.

Many Steps Taken

Many steps already have been taken to meet the manpower problem, which the president recently said was one of having "the right numbers of the right people in the right places at the right time."

The War Production Board is attempting to place war contracts where the WMC says there is surplus labor and to avoid placing them in spots where the WMC says there is a labor shortage.

The National Housing Administration is leasing and remodeling privately-owned houses, apartments, hotels and warehouses in defense areas.

The WMC is moving to intensify local labor recruitment and training in areas where there is a marked shortage.

A vast worker-training program is being carried on in school rooms and in factories.

Congress is being asked to provide funds for rehabilitating handicapped soldiers, sailors and civilians so they may be conditioned for war jobs.

Mine Workers Anchored

To overcome the shortage of copper, zinc and other non-ferrous metals needed in war production, workers engaged in producing them in twelve western states were directed not to transfer to other activities without approval of the employment service. Also, the nation's gold mines were ordered closed to free workers for the non-ferrous metals industry.

To back up these orders, workers in the non-ferrous metals mines were given draft-deferment inducement to stay on their jobs and a threat of losing deferment if they left, and hire them away.

At the recommendation of the nation's advisory committee of the manpower commission, McNutt cautioned today against unrestricted hiring of women.

In a statement of policy, McNutt urged that "special efforts" to put women with young children in jobs "be deferred until all other sources of local labor supply have been exhausted."

Safeguards Family Life

The recommendation was made, he said, "in order that established family life will not be unnecessarily disrupted."

At the same time, McNutt cautioned women not to leave their home towns to seek work or job-training without first registering with their nearest U. S. D. employment offices to ascertain where work or training was available.

He called, however, for intensified recruitment and training of acceptable women workers on a voluntary basis in all phases of war production and essential civilian activities where the need has been shown.

The policy statement included among the "basic national standards" for induction of women into the labor market these comments: "Women should be admitted on a basis of equality with men to all forms of training and to employment in any occupations in which they are or can be fitted," and should have "free access of foremen, supervisory and technical jobs."

Wage rates should be determined "on the basis of the work performed, irrespective of sex."

Women should not work more than six days and a total of forty-eight hours in any week except in emergencies.

Indicating the seriousness of the defiance movement which centered last week at Lyon, Chambery, Annecy and Ambrus, a Vichy radio report that Laval returned to his capital today after an all-day conference with Nazi chieftains yesterday at Paris. Laval was said to have entered further conferences with "trusted" associates.

Predict Spread of Violence

Fighting French sources said that Vichy must defy Hitler's demands or face growing violence among Frenchmen.

The deadline for the delivery of the current quota of workers, exchangeable at three-to-one for French prisoners of war in German hands, was reported to have been extended but the fighting French said that a showdown for Laval was not far off.

The fighting French say that ninety-eight per cent of occupied France is anti-Nazi and expresses itself through a variety of organizations, all generally following orders from the fighting French leader, General Charles DeGaulle, and that at least eighty per cent of unoccupied France now feels similarly, as against 50-50 sentiments of a year ago.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
AP Staff Writer

Among the few certainties of the tense touch-and-go fight for the Solomons is that failure of the first American offensive campaign would be the signal for a storm of disappointed recriminations at home.

Already Congress has heard a suggestion that the Navy may have attempted to conduct a "grandstand play" without asking aid of army ground and air forces in time.

Admiral Nimitz, the Pacific commander-in-chief, voiced optimism over the outlook a few days ago in Honolulu, almost at the moment when the Japanese were managing to break through our aerial defenses and land menacingly heavy forces on Guadalcanal Island.

Risks Worth Taking
At this moment any recriminations appear as premature as a prediction that Guadalcanal's defenders will be crushed. But should the worst occur, there is much to support the idea that the gains would more than balance the loss, that the risks were worth taking and that it was better to have tried and failed than not to have undertaken the Solomons venture at all.

Pavored by surprise, the Navy and Marine expeditionary force seized the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area at a time when the Japanese had nearly completed an air base which imperiled the vital link between the United States and the Southwest Pacific. This was set forth in an explanatory statement at the outset by Admiral King, the fleet commander-in-chief.

As in every campaign, all sorts of risks had to be weighed, including presumably the danger that the foe would decide to meet the threat with all available sea and air strength regardless of demands elsewhere. Against such a full dress attack as has developed in the past few days, King and his advisers possibly never were too optimistic of holding on. Among some competent military men there was a feeling from the first that once the Japanese put artillery ashore the field could not be held.

But had the Navy neglected to act decisively, there would have been more ample reason for criticism than for any failure. Complete success promised the definite start of an American offensive.

Because the nearest American bases were in the New Hebrides, some 500 miles distant, and in New Caledonia, nearly twice as far, there were obvious limits on the size of the force that could be maintained.

Marines Out on a Limb
In Guadalcanal the American expedition is as much on a limb as the Japanese in the Aleutians. Thus far at least it has given a substantially better account of itself than the foe in the north Pacific. The score of the Solomons venture to date is fifty or more enemy surface vessels sunk or damaged, some 300 warplanes destroyed, and possibly the whole Japanese war plan for an attack on Siberia or elsewhere upset. And the returns obviously are not all in yet.

FOR MEN ABOUT TO JOIN THE ARMY OR NAVY

To give your clothes the proper protection against moths and dirt while you are away, we suggest that you let us clean them, WITHOUT PRESSING them. After cleaning, we will wrap them well in heavy paper, so that you can pack them away with safety. Or, if you prefer them returned on hangers, we can seal them in moth-proof bags for 15c each, extra. Either method is perfectly safe, but we recommend wrapping, as it is more economical.

2. The sooner you are in the Army, the better you'll be prepared. You'll get thorough training, good pay—a chance for rapid promotion. If you're qualified, you'll be encouraged to enter an Officer Candidate School. Many men of your age have already won commissions.

3. Read carefully the list of Army services at the right. Before you're 20, you can make your own choice. Pick the one that appeals to you most, and that you're best fitted for. In every one you'll find thrilling action and adventure, along with sound training for a future career.

MAKE YOUR CHOICE OF U. S. ARMY BRANCHES

AIR FORCES—Learn to fly and fight and keep 'em flying in one of more than 26 Air Force jobs. Bombardiers, navigators, pilots, gunners, radio men are needed in the air—mechanics on the ground. Train for a career in this fighting service.

ARMORED FORCE—Smash the enemy with a fast-moving, powerful team of tanks, combat cars, trucks, "jeeps," motorcycles. There's thrilling action for gunners, drivers, radio men and mechanics in the Army's tough armored divisions.

CAVALRY—Whether you like to ride a good horse or handle a fast armored car, motorcycle or truck, there's a place for you in the Cavalry's mobile striking force. The rougher the going the better the Cavalry likes it.

CHEMICAL WARFARE SERVICE—Here's your chance to be a combat soldier, firing chemical munitions. The 4.2-inch mortar, used for smoke screens to cover the advance of troops, will be one of your principal weapons.

COAST ARTILLERY—Want to aim an antiaircraft gun at a Jap—or help load and fire a giant coast defense gun? Service with the Coast Artillery will give you experience in gunnery, mechanics, electrical and radio work.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS—In the forefront of the fighting much of the time, you'll see a lot of action with the Engineers. Building bridges, roads, air-fields and tank-traps—planning camouflage—destroying enemy installations—are all in the day's work.

CORPS OF MILITARY POLICE—Reliable, clear-thinking men who know how to shoulder responsibility, the Military Police speed troop movements at the front and behind the lines, guard prisoners, enforce order. They're trained fighting men.

FIELD ARTILLERY—Here's the outfit that softens up the foe with a barrage of shells, smashes his supply lines, rains fire on his reserves. The guns roll fast behind speedy trucks and tractors. Plenty of action for daring drivers, gunners and mechanics.

INFANTRY—Moving 40 miles an hour in big trucks, skiing in snowy mountains, dropping by parachute or flying into enemy territory in transport planes, today's infantry is streamlined. Eleven different weapons give deadly fire-power. Upon enlistment you may request assignment for tank destroyer training.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT—Wherever the fighting is toughest the Medical units are on the job, saving lives. Ambulance drivers, laboratory technicians and able young men for many other duties are needed now in this vital service.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT—The supply and maintenance of all weapons are in charge of the Ordnance Department. Repairing tanks and guns under fire is a job for tough men. There's lots of room for daring drivers and good mechanics.

QUARTERMASTER CORPS—Battle smoke and bursting shells can't stop the movement of food and supplies. Men in the front lines have to be fed. The Quartermaster Corps takes care of the troops wherever they are. The service develops resourcefulness.

SIGNAL CORPS—In the nerve center of the Army, Signal Corps men "get the message through." Radio, telephone and other means of swift communication are their tools. They work with "electronic sentries" and other secret weapons, and get front-line action and experience.

Theaters Today

Blue Barron Returns to Maryland's Stage

Blue Barron, who brings his

"music of yesterday and today" to the Maryland theater tomorrow, through arrangements with Consolidated Radio Artists, Inc., is an Ohioan, born in Lorain. He went to school in Cleveland, then entered the University of Ohio at Athens to study medicine.

A career as a doctor or a surgeon was his family's wish for him—but it wasn't Blue's ambition. During his first two years at Ohio his interest in music and entertainment was first expressed by membership on every prom committee, then chairmanship of those committees. The first thing he knew he had a thriving orchestra and entertainment booking business going as a sideline.

After two years at the university, and still against the wishes of his family, he decided to devote his full time to his theretofore extracurricular business. It was taking so much of his time that his academic marks were slipping, and it was bringing in more money annually than he would probably make in his first five years as a doctor, not to mention the five years or more it would take to complete his medical courses and internship.

Then the inevitable happened. The Floating Palace, a showboat in Troy, New York, wanted an orchestra, and Blue didn't have a band to fill it. The years of violin lessons and musical education upon which his parents had insisted up until the time he left home for college asserted themselves, and he organized a band with himself at the baton and filled the engagement, figuring on going back to the booking business when it ended.

Versatile Actor Finds Lots of Work in Films

There is one old-time picture player who is never at a loss for the employment of his varied talents. Charles Rogers when he is not acting before the camera, is busy directing other players or writing the material for them.

His current activity as a player is to be seen in the Harry Langdon comedy, "House of Errors," a P.R.C. picture coming to the Embassy theater tomorrow.

Rogers comes by his talents naturally, for his father was the famous English dramatist of the same name, who wrote over forty plays, many of which were produced by Charles Frohman in the United States.

The present Rogers started his career with a dramatic stock company in England. He came to America in 1912 to play the part of the Artful Dodger in the all-star cast of "Oliver Twist" at the Amsterdam theater in New York with Nat Goodwin. He broke into pictures at Warners in the first Vitaphone talking picture by producing his own vaudeville acts.

Then for many years he was with the Hal Roach Studios as director and writer, chiefly working with the comedy team of Laurel and Hardy. Rogers holds the writing or director credits for most of their outstanding pictures.

Kyser, Barrymore Teamed in Comedy

Teaming such national favorites of radio, stage and screen as Kay Kyser and John Barrymore, "Playmates" is said to be the season's most sparkling, song-studded comedy, starring Kay Kyser. The picture is now at the Garden theater.

Chronicling in hilarious fashion the hectic adventures of a popular band leader and a noted Shakespearean actor who attempt to combine their talents, the gay offering features Lupe Velez, May Robson, Patzy Kelly, Peter Lind Hayes, Ginny Simms and the entire Kyser band, including Harry Babbitt, Sully Mason and Ish Kabibble. David Butler produced and directed the film for RKO Radio.

Also on the Garden program today is "Secret Agent of Japan," with Preston Foster, Lynn Bari, Sen Yung and Janis Carter.

Many Who Ask for Operations Need Only Nerve Cures, Physician Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
When a surgeon decides that what is wrong with most of his patients is not that they need an operation, but their nerve, that's news.

A few weeks ago I told of the ideas of my friend, Dr. Alvarez, received on the publication of his paper, only one came from a surgeon. But to make up for that he comes a surgeon, Dr. Arnold S. Jackson, of Madison, Wisconsin, with a book entitled "The Answer Is" (Continued from Page 7)

BUT MILK IS EXPENSIVE FEED

It takes from 1200 to 1800 pounds of whole milk to raise a calf to 4 months. At present milk prices this is costly food.

A cheaper way to keep them growing, to build big husky calves, is to feed them Southern States Calf Starter.

Your Nerves." It is evident that what Dr. Jackson means by "Your Nerves" is much the same as what Dr. Alvarez means by constitutional inadequacy.

of whom are convinced that they need a surgical operation to get well, has found that a very large proportion of them are sick because their nerves have gone awry, and that their nerves have jumped the track, not on account of any organic illness but because they have never learned how to live economically and sanely.

they do not want, and women are continually rushing in a terrific hurry to get nowhere. They pound and hammer and strain their poor old nervous reserves, cashing checks on them without ever balancing the account until one day they find the bank is empty. Their health is busted. They had an inflation with an inevitable depression.

this subject with helpful remarks on how to determine whether the symptoms one has are really due to enlargement of the thyroid gland.

Under the heading "Nerves in the Nursery" he remarks on the children brought up in a jazz age with the horror stories pouring in, the pressure of school lessons, piano lessons, athletic contests, dancing school, all making things as competitive as possible, and concludes: "Many of the young people of today are actually burned out by the time they finish college, and all too often this stage is reached even in high school."

A Case History

The modern woman often undertakes as strenuous a program as the modern man. Dr. Jackson has a story of a former club woman, Little Theatre, society leader, expert bridge player, speech-making woman, who came to him in middle ge with a paper on which were in-written twenty symptoms she had,

such as: insomnia, poor appetite, indigestion, bitter taste in the mouth, rapid heart, gas on the stomach, constipation, heartburn, pains in back of neck, unbearable home the early days of aseptic surgery when the surgeon would operate on anyone. Heaven only knows how many of the purely nervous patients carry surgical scars. But the surgeons are learning restraint.

Questions and Answers
A. G. Passiac, N. J.; — Is there any cure for a broken cartilage in the knee without undergoing operation?
Answer: Sometimes a slipped or broken cartilage gives no or little trouble. It is never completely cured unless removed surgically.

RURAL SCRAP METAL DRIVE

CONTINUES ALL THIS WEEK

We Must Get In The Scrap

This war is not being fought in "made to order weather". It's being fought 'round the world, from the searing sands of Egypt to the killing cold of Russia . . . from the stinking jungles of Africa to the dismal, fog shrouded Aleutians and shark infested South Pacific . . . In every clime where the enemy can be found the fight for freedom moves relentlessly forward. It cannot stop for one instant. Nor can the fight on the homefront to raise 8,000,000 tons of scrap metal stop for one instant . . . Even rain or mud or high water cannot stop it. We must get in the scrap. Allegany county's rural scrap metal drive will continue all this week so that every last pound of metal and rubber can be salvaged. FOR VICTORY!

Father Slays Son
While Hunting*Max McKee Shot when He Steps into Line of Fire

Max McKee, 20, Frenchburg, Hampshire county, was fatally wounded Saturday afternoon, when he stepped into the line of fire of his father's gun, while the two were hunting turkeys in the woods near Frenchburg.

Prosecuting attorney J. S. Zimmerman, said the father, Lee McKee, was exonerated. Zimmerman said the father told him they were calling turkeys by imitating the cry of the bird when a turkey was suddenly "flushed" from the bushes. He took aim, and as he fired his son stepped into the line of fire from behind some bushes, apparently intending to shoot at the bird, too.

The prosecuting attorney said the discharge struck the youth in back of the head, killing him instantly.

The body was taken to the Wade McKee Funeral Home pending funeral arrangements.

Fort Hill and LaSalle Meet Friday Night

Hahnmen Should Cop Intra-City Series Opener

Allegany Opens CVAL Campaign at Winchester, Va., Saturday

Bill Hahn's unbeaten and unscathed-on Fort Hill High Sentinels and Jack Plum's rapidly-improving LaSalle High Explorers will open the 1942 three-cornered city scholastic football championship series by clashing at the Fort Hill stadium Friday night at 8 o'clock.

The Sentinels, who made it four straight victories last Saturday when they launched their Cumberland Valley Athletic League title bid with a 27-0 triumph over the Martinsburg (W. Va.) Bulldogs, will be favored to continue their streak.

The Explorers, who struck late in the second period on a pass from Jim Laffey to George Geatz to topple an Alumni combination 6-0 last Saturday night, will be striving for their third straight victory. In four games this season, LaSalle lost to Altoona (Pa.) Catholic, dropped a hard-fought tussle to the Moorefield High Yellow Jackets, turned back Ridgeley by a wide margin and kept the ball rolling by stopping the Grads.

Fort Hill's powerful running attack and its better-than-average passing game has brought the Scarlet and White one-sided decisions over Thomas, Ridgeley, Berkeley Springs and Martinsburg, and unless the Hahnmen have an off night, should prove too tough for the up-and-coming Explorers to handle.

Sentinels Hike Point Total

Saturday, the Sentinels splashed through the water and mud at Martinsburg to hike their point total to 176 for an average of forty-four per cent. The Hillmen were in complete command of the battle from start to finish, running up a total of 295 yards overland and in the air while holding the Bulldogs to forty-eight.

Fort Hill completed six of nine passes in spite of the slippery ball field for a total of seventy-five yards while Martinsburg connected once in four tries for ten yards. Fort Hill had nine first downs to the losers' three.

The touchdown which enabled LaSalle to whip the Alumni climaxed a forty-one yard drive with Laffey passing to Geatz in the end zone for the last thirteen yards.

The Explorers made six first downs, 102 yards by rushing and thirty-eight more yards on two of three passes. The Alumni gained sixty-eight yards by rushing, none on passes and moved the first-down sticks four times.

Herman Ball's Allegany High Campers, who will be defending the city championship, will open defense of the CVAL title Saturday when they travel to Winchester, Va., to oppose the Handley High Judges. It will be the first game away from home this season for the West Siders, whose scheduled CVAL opener with Hagerstown last Friday night was postponed due to flood conditions.

A. H. S. Averages 41 Points

Allegany, like Fort Hill, is undefeated and has yet to be scored upon. The Ballmen, in whipping Ridgeley, Keyser, and an Alumni aggregation, have rung the bell for a total of 124 points or an average of forty-one per cent. The Campers will be favored over the Judges, who defeated Berkeley Springs in their opener and then lost to Anacostia High of Washington, D. C.

In addition to the Fort Hill-LaSalle contest Friday, the district state calls for two Potomac Valley Conference encounters with Ridgeley travelling to Moorefield to meet the unbeaten Yellow Jackets and Keyser invading Thomas. In the only conference clash played last week, the Parsons High Panthers tightened their grip on first place by defeating Franklin 12-0 in their third straight victory in the circuit.

Other games Friday are West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney and Franklin on the latter's gridiron and Hagerstown and Charles Town at Charles Town.

On the collegiate side of the ledger, the Potomac State Catamounts went down to their second two point defeat at the hands of Fairmont State last Saturday, losing 8-6 in their annual homecoming skirmish at Keyser. It also was the fourth straight setback for Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's gridmen, who have an open date on their schedule this week.

Detroit Titans Whip Manhattan's Jaspers To Remain Unbeaten

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP)—The University of Detroit's unbeaten football Titans, smart and sturdy, overwhelmed Manhattan's Jaspers, 21 to 7, today by scoring two touchdowns on sustained marches and another after recovering a fumble to impress 12,500 fans at the Polo Grounds.

With Tippy Madarik leading the way the Titans paraded eighty-four yards to a touchdown in the first period and never were in danger thereafter.

A fumble by Madarik on his own thirty-one after the Titans had been penalized for clipping gave Manhattan its only scoring chance

Freshman Stars Capturing Share Of Grid Laurels

Majority Of Colleges Welcome 'Rats' If They Can Run or Pass

By DILLON GRAHAM
NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (Wide World)—It's one of those things you never thought you'd live to see—a freshman playing varsity football for Princeton!

It wasn't unusual in the old-old days but since the tramp athlete has been booted out and the three-year eligibility rule brought in, freshmen have been ordered to stay off the varsity field, to do their scrimmaging with the other yearlings.

But the war has changed all that. Loss of manpower to the military services has caused a majority of the colleges to revoke their rules and welcome the "Rats" if they can run or pass or block.

That's why there's a first-year boy named George Franke in the varsity backfield for old Nassau. He's a pretty good kid, too, scored Princeton's touchdown against Navy.

Harvard has its Comford. Harvard also has its freshman flash. He's Jackie Comford, a triple-threat and the best passer the Crimson has had in some time.

Down South, Georgia Tech's early successes, can be traced partly to a little 180-pound yearling named Clint Castleberry. He's a tailback and a southpaw passer. Clint threw the touchdown pass that brought the Engineers a surprise triumph over Notre Dame. Georgia U. also boasts a standout in Pullback Sonny Lloyd. Alabama offers Hosea Rodgers, who shook loose for a sixty-two-yard run against the Pensacola Navy.

A younger known as Larry Joe has been a sensation for Penn State. The halfback made a sixty-five-yard punt return against Lehigh for the winning touchdown and his final touchdown enabled the Lions to beat Bucknell. Navy's quarterback is a first-year performer. Dave Barksdale, and the Sailors also can use Ben Chase at tackle and Ben Martin in the backfield.

Other Fresh Stars

George Boston, a fresh end, caught a touchdown pass thrown by Freshman Comford against Penn. Colgate has a honey in backfielder Walter McQuade. He passed for a touchdown against Cornell and scored against Dartmouth. Dick Leonard, fullback, made one of West Virginia's tallies against South Carolina. Felix Siezege, Bucknell back, caught a scoring pass against Penn State Lafayette King, Georgia end, was on the receiving end of a sixty-two-yard pass-and-run scoring maneuver against Mississippi.

Columbia likes the looks of Pullback George Gehrke and Center Charles Klemovich. Syracuse has Freshman Gerry Pellegrini at center, while Francis Mallinowski, a 17-year-old freshman, is an offensive threat at end for Fordham. Back Neil Dooley at Colgate, Center Frank Perantoni of Princeton, Back Allen Dekdebrun of Columbia, Back Leo Flynn of Harvard, Back Al Litwa of Fordham, and Back Joe McAfee of Holy Cross are other freshmen who've already grabbed the headlines.

early in the third period. A pass brought a first down on the fourteen, short plunges added another first down on the two and Bill Burns crashed the middle of the line for the touchdown.

Middies, Terrors Are Only State Elevens To Win

Navy Tops Yale To Earn Top Billing -- V.M.I. Blasts Terps

By FRED STABLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Four Maryland college football teams held forth on the gridiron Saturday and returned two wins and two losses for a 500 average.

Navy chalked up one on the right side of the ledger when the Middies fought their way to a 13 to 6 victory over Yale in a thriller at Baltimore Municipal stadium. Western Maryland's Green Terrors registered the second win of the day by squeezing out a close 3 to 0 decision over a scrappy Mt. St. Mary's eleven in the only intra-state tussle of the day.

The shock of the day, and shock it was, was the 29 to 0 pasting Virginia Military Institute hung on the University of Maryland, obliterating the Old Liners' undefeated record and quelling any thought of a Clark Shaughnessy "miracle" such as the one he turned in his first year at Stanford.

A fourth scheduled game, between Johns Hopkins and Curtis Bay Coast Guard, was cancelled when Homewood field, Baltimore, was declared unfit for play.

Cameron Sparks Navy

Work billing for their Saturday's top unquestionably must go to the Tars. Not only did they score their first major win of the year but they gave every evidence of living up to Head Coach Commr. John E. Wheelch's prediction that the Middies would become a better team with the passing of each week. From here on in the Navy should be as tough as Sailor teams of yore.

Outstanding in the Navy backfield was Captain Alan Cameron, who finally came into his own after a long battle against pre-season injuries.

Cameron passed to one touchdown, intercepted an Eli pass at a crucial moment, ran back the second half kickoff half the distance of the field, was a bulwark on both offense and defense and generally comported himself brilliantly.

The Navy line was tough as a battleship and only through the air could the desperate Yale men pick up any distance at all. The Yale touchdown came on two beautifully executed passes from Hugh Knowlton to Tim Hoopes in the closing seconds of the first half.

Channell took Cameron's pass for Navy's clinching touchdown early in the third quarter. Martin, a plebe, took the ball from Hume on a reverse and raced across the line from eleven yards out for the first Middle score in the second quarter.

The story of the Maryland debacle can be told in just two words: Joe Muha.

Terp Threat Bogs Down

The 200-pound fullback with magic in his arms and legs appeared to be everything and more than opponents, scouts and sports writer have said about him as he took charge of the contest and carried the rest of the V.M.I. team with him along the victory trail.

Muha did everything. He battered his way like a tank through the Maryland line. He passed the apple as if it was a hand grenade he just had to get rid of, he snatched Tommy Mont's passes out of the hands of potential Maryland receivers, and looked like Gibraltar on the defense.

Maryland's best threat bogged down on the V.M.I. nineteen early in the second half. The Keydets counted fourteen first downs to the Old Liners' six.

Western Maryland hung up its second win of the year by trial and error or Manny Kaplan's toe. Three times Kaplan tried to spit the up-rights for three points and failed. In the closing minute of play, with the Mounts hanging on desperately for a scoreless tie, Kaplan tried again from the eleven-yard line and came through with a three pointer.

Mt. St. Mary's very nearly won the upset victory over Western Maryland it was seeking as the finale to a two-game war-abbreviated schedule when Fuhrman intercepted a Western Maryland pass in the second period and scooted forty-eight yards to pay territory. The play was called back by a holding penalty against the Mounts.

Tars To Be Put to Test

Saturday's doings ran the state collegiate record for the season to eight wins and six losses, with Maryland still holding first place with three wins against a single loss.

Next week, Navy's Middies will be put to a test that should prove beyond a shadow of a doubt just how highly the Sailors can be rated for the remainder of the season. Georgia Tech's tough Engineers, conquerors of Notre Dame and 33 to 0 victor over Davidson last Saturday, will invade Annapolis for a stand-out contest. A victory here would return Navy to the front rank of grid powers.

Maryland and Western Maryland are slated to renew their annual battle royal at Baltimore's Municipal stadium, and Johns Hopkins will try again to get a game played by journeying to Philadelphia to meet Haverford college. Standings of state teams to date:

Team	W	L	TP	OF	Pct.
Maryland	3	0	0	0	.750
Navy	2	2	0	0	.500
Western Maryland	2	0	0	0	.667
Mt. St. Mary's	1	1	0	0	.500
Johns Hopkins	0	0	0	0	.000

Sammy Baugh Outclasses Field In Chucking Ball, Lardner Says

By JOHN LARDNER
NEW YORK, Oct. 18—To the surprise of an Eskimo saxophone-player named Wuk, making his first visit to this county, the statistics of the National Football League show Sammy Baugh leading in passes and Don Hutson leading in points.

No one else, as far as I can tell from a hasty poll of persons passing my front door between 10 and 11 a. m., shares the astonishment of Mr. Wuk. Baugh is the world's best passer, and Hutson is the world's steadiest tenant of end zones, and there they are again.

Still and all, it is impressive to behold the consistency of this divided battery, the pitcher in Washington and the catcher in Green Bay, Wis. For several years now they have been up against the fastest individual competition in football, but no one has ever seriously challenged the supremacy of either. Even the awesome Chicago Bears are content to compete collectively with Mr. Baugh and Mr. Hutson, without offering any single rival to one or the other in their respective fields.

Sammy Best Ever

Most of the players in the league subscribe ungrudgingly to the platform that Sam'l Baugh, from Sweetwater, Tex., is the best thrower the game has ever developed. It's true, however, that Sam is not the easiest man in the world to catch until you get to know him. Another Washington pitcher, Walter Johnson, had the same trouble breaking in his catchers. You will probably remember that Sergeant Gabby Street caught balls thrown off top of the Washington Monument by way of preparing to handle Johnson's swift one. Walter was fast, all right, and Baugh is not much slower.

Sam is a good enough passer, of course, to accommodate his stuff to his receivers. The reason he throws fast is that it improves the play's chance of success, provided the receiver can handle it. The Washington receivers are used to Sam. I saw a game last January, however, which gave me a hint of how tough it might be to come in cold and catch him, without warning.

This was the game between the Bears and the National League All-Stars. There were some very able receivers among the All-Stars, but they all seemed painfully surprised by the force with which the ball hit them when Baugh passed. It was a question whether it hurt them more to be tackled or to catch the pass.

Naturally, Sam could not afford to slow up and throw his knuckler in the teeth of a team like the Bears—not on flat pass plays, where, when you wait to pick out your target, you have to get the ball to him as fast as possible. So Baugh knocked his catchers into shape, and when he had them bruised about the ribs but beginning to handle the ball properly, he connected often enough to make the Bears uneasy.

Improves With Age

Incidentally, Baugh, the arch-passer, threw one pass in that game to Hutson, the arch-catcher—one and one only. Hutson caught it, as is his wont but the two Bears from whom he stole it promptly broke his leg with their joint tackle, and Donald was led limping out of the ball game.

Baugh, mind you, is not strictly a flat passer, though I think he is the best there has been in that department since Ed Danowski, and probably better by now than Danowski ever was. Sam can throw at all speeds and ranges and trajectories. He is great on the long, delayed, down-the-field pass, and he is fine on leading his receivers in the middle distances, on the flanks, with the kind of "snub-nosed," up-ended ball that it is easiest for a catcher to take ahead of him on the dead run.

Some days you get the idea that Mr. Baugh is still learning things about passing a football, and he does seem to improve with age. When he retires, they ought to build four brick walls and a roof around the wise man of Sweetwater and turn him into a private library on how to pass—North American Newspaper Alliance.

High Schoolers Are Hardest Hit By Sports Curb

Collegians and Pros Could Drop Athletics Much More Easily

By WHITNEY MACATIN
NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (Wide World)—All the concern about the effects of the transportation problem on sports seems to be confined to the collegians and pros. Nobody has given much of a tumble to the troubles of the high school kids, possibly figuring that troubles pile up with the years and high school kids aren't old enough to have very many.

Which may be true enough, but the very youth of these future collegians and pros, not to mention soldiers, sailors and marines, makes their sports problem more acute. Here are kids between 14 and 17 years old, that plastic, carefree period when their future is beginning to take form, with the form depending largely on what they do with their time.

Your average high school kid is wrapped up in sports. Competitive sports. Take them away from him and what has he got? Well, he might learn to shoot a good, fast game of kelly pool at the corner billiard emporium, or covertly learn to puff on a cornob without his stomach turning handspings, or sample dad's private stock. What is that saying about idle hands, anyway?

Threat Already Real

Sure, if there were no interscholastic athletics the kids might be given calisthenics or some other form of mass training. But did you ever try to handle boys of that age in some such standardized routine? It's just like trying to get some semblance of order out of a basketball of coile pups. They're bubbling with life. They'll go through the routine if they are forced to, but that isn't what they want. They want virile, body-contact sports where they aren't tied down by 1-2-3-kick directions. They have the good old American trait of individual initiative, and they want to put it to work.

Collegians and pros, more mature, could drop sports much more easily, than the high school kids. They're old enough to find other constructive interests, or even accept mass calisthenics as a substitute. But not your high school kids. They're living in their own little world of today.

The threat to interscholastic sports already is very real. Collegians and pros, with money behind them, may find a way to get from here to there regardless of transportation difficulties. Most high school sports are conducted on a shoestring, and a lot of them on well-worn tires which, when too well worn, possibly can't be replaced.

Basketball Threatened

A Midwest scout reports that in his district there is little common carrier service, and most high school teams depend on school buses for getting around. When the tires wear out there is considerable chance they can't be replaced if used for such purposes.

Tires of officials who work the countless games every week also are getting thin, and there is no guarantee that the men can get extra gas when national rationing goes into effect.

The scout reports the football teams may get through the season, and the officials complete their assignments. But he fears for basketball if conditions don't change. The cage season will blow sky high, he fears, with neither teams nor officials able to go farther than around the block.

Many high school athletic programs in his section, he says, are just hanging on, and that's all, now. On top of that, many schools are without capable coaches. A mathematics prof may know a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, but when he tries to put that to work on a football field he's apt to run into trouble.

So give a thought to these high school kids. They're the ones who really need competitive athletics. If they can't have them, no telling what dire things may be in store. They might even have to start studying.

Tennis Star Contributes 40 Trophies to Salvage

ELKHART, Ind., Oct. 18 (AP)—Miss Catherine Wolf, tennis star, gave forty trophies — gold, silver and bronze loving cups she had won — to the salvage campaign.

They represented several Indianapolis, Indiana and Western women's championships and the state badminton title.

Good Receiver

Dave Schreiner, Wisconsin's All-America end of 1941 and outstanding flankman in the mid-West in 1942, ranks seventeenth among the nation's ends in individual pass receiving. Schreiner has caught seven passes for a total of 198 yards, three of them being good for touchdowns.

CHEER UP, COACH

This gent has worries, and plenty of 'em. He's a football coach and they always have big worries. He is Lieut. C. T. Reese, former assistant coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Professional Football League, now coaching the Ellington field, Texas, Bombers. The Bombers, you see, lost their first two games of the season.

Blue-Gray Game Set for Dec. 26

South's Coaching Staff Complete; Several Stars Accept Bids

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 18 (AP)—Officials of the Blue and Gray Association, sponsors of the annual North-South All-Star football game, today announced completion of the South's coaching staff and acceptance by several star gridgers of bids to play in the classic.

Georgia's Frankie Sinkwich, Blonnie Black of Mississippi State, Monk Gafford of Auburn, Jack Jenkins of Vanderbilt, Harvey Johnson of William and Mary, and Joe Muha of V.M.I. all have agreed to play—provided a "bow" date doesn't conflict. The Blue and Gray game is scheduled December 26 at Montgomery.

Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech and Wallace Butts of Georgia were named to the Rebel coaching staff, headed by Ailyn McKeen of Mississippi State. Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech will accompany his protegee, Bobby Dodd, as guest coach, the association announced.

This will be the fifth game of a series designed to raise funds for charity. The South has won two and the North two.

Carl Snively of Cornell and Lynn Waldorf and Bert Ingwerson of Northwestern are slated to return again this year as North coaches.

"Black Barney" Wins 300-Mile Bird Race

MIDLAND, Oct. 18—"Black Barney," from the loft of J. Seib, won the Algonquin Pigeon Racing Club's 300-mile race from Cincinnati, Ohio, last week.

The forty-seven birds in the field were liberated at 8 a. m., and "Black Barney" winged the distance in four hours, forty-one minutes and fifty-eight seconds, averaging 1,012.38 yards per minute.

"Early Anna," also owned by Seib, was second with an average of 1,011.79 yards per minute while Bern Seib's "Goggles Pet" was third with a mark of 1,010.37.

Durable Player

SAN DIEGO, Cal. (AP)—Hal Patchett, center fielder for the San Diego club, of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, played his one thousandth game for the Padres on the final game of the season. Patchett, who joined San Diego in 1937, had an unofficial batting average of .288 for the 1942 season.

Familiar Upset Pattern Claims Iowa's Seahawks

Lowly - Regarded Notre Dame Stops Bernie Bierman's Stalwarts

By DAVE HOFF
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 18 (AP)—Confidence, changing to confusion, then to chaos—that's the familiar upset pattern which in the last two Saturdays has engulfed two of the Midwest's mightiest grid aggregations, Minnesota and the Iowa Seahawks.

Just as the Golden Gophers faded a week ago before an underrated Illinois team, so did Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman's stalwarts from the Iowa Pre-Flight School collapse yesterday to a lowly regarded Notre Dame team that wasn't supposed to stand a chance against the conquerors of Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan.

The Seahawks, winners of four straight games, walked onto the field supremely confident they would have no trouble with an Irish eleven that was beaten once and tied once in three previous games.

And there was nothing in the first period to disturb that Seahawk placidity. For the naval school rolled up five first downs to none for the Irish, and gained seventy-one yards to seven for Notre Dame. The only thing that prevented a Seahawk score was a goal line pass interception by Angelo Bertelli, the Irish aerial specialist, that broke up a Navy drive.

But thereafter the tempo changed. It was really a lopsided game the next three periods, with Notre Dame rolling up 270 yards rushing and 155 passing to the Seahawks' total offense of 152 yards.

Bertelli's passing wasn't needed nearly as much as had been expected. He did throw a pass to Bob Livingston for the first Notre Dame touchdown and all in all three nine passes of which five were completed and none intercepted. They gained 137 yards.

On the other hand the Seahawks' ace passer, Dick Fisher, tried thirteen passes and completed five for forty-eight yards, but four were intercepted by the alert Irish, including Crownin Clatt's thirty-seven yard runback for the second Notre Dame touchdown. Invalide Jerry Cowling stomped into the game in the second half and spun across for two more Irish touchdowns, both climaxing marches of pure power aided by just a little passing.

Oddly enough the winners of the two big upsets of the last two Saturdays—Illinois and Notre Dame—meet next Saturday at Champaign, Ills.

"The Authority on Authorities."

TWO EXTREME CASES
VARIOUS types of hands call for different kinds of action when a dealer's opening bid has been passed by the next two players and it is up to you to either close the auction with a pass or keep it alive. If your holding is too weak for any positive action, you naturally pass. But when you have enough to do something, your correct move can vary widely, dependent on whether your hand is primarily of the offensive type or of the defensive type.

Hand No. 1 is an ideal one for such a double, with a sound amount of strength for it after your right-hand opponent's pass of his partner's 1-Diamond has advertised to you his weakness and the consequent fact that your own partner undoubtedly has strength lying somewhere between a little bit and enough for a goodly trap pass. With that hand, you are ready for any action your partner takes.

Hand No. 2 is the other extreme, the kind which may prove pretty fair if you are declarer at one of your own suits, but is not much good otherwise. Throughout any bidding sequence, the two-suiter nearly always impels you to show one suit first, so that on your next turn you may show the other. Consequently, a bid of 1-Spade is the only thing to be considered when the 1-Diamond reaches you. It is not such a hand as you would like to play defensively against the opponent, nor is it of much good at No Trump unless later bidding develops a suitable situation.

By bidding 1-Spade with hand No. 2, you make sure that you will get a chance to offer your partner a choice between that suit and hearts in case he should bid clubs. But remember that, whenever your hand properly justifies a double in that position, it should always be considered.

Business as Usual Follows Clean Up Of Flood Damage

Communications, Railroads, Highways and Stores Normal

"Business as usual," seems to be the slogan throughout the city and county as conditions returned to normal following the flood last Thursday. Flood-beleagued residents of the entire area seem to agree generally that receding waters left behind a big clean up job and very little major property damage. Here in Cumberland particularly, the clean up job seems to have been accomplished in good order.

Railroad, highway and communications facilities have returned to normal. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad which had routed trains over the Pennsylvania and Western Maryland lines, reported last night that regular service has been resumed and a checkup shows no great flood damage.

Merchandise Is Returned

All day Friday, Saturday and Sunday, business firms and local residents were busily engaged returning merchandise, furniture and fixtures to store rooms or homes, while every available pump was pressed into service to clear out basements, cellars and other places where water had settled.

Laundries, cleaning establishments, barber shops and other service enterprises are back to normal operation while retail stores and other firms are taking care of trade in the customary manner.

Theaters in the city are all open for business except one, and this one will be in operation by the middle of the week. Water did some damage to seats and other equipment, and the place is being thoroughly dried out before it is opened to the public.

Dr. Theodore R. Shrop, city and county health officer said last night that over a hundred people here, at Locust Grove and Ellerslie had applied for typhoid inoculations Sunday and were given the vaccine. They will return to the stations next Sunday for a second injection and the following Sunday for the final one. Dr. Shrop said a survey by his department shows that most people have been doing a good job cleaning up and the city and county show little signs of the flood experience.

No Epidemic Imminent

Dr. Shrop said he sees no immediate danger of epidemics of any kind, although he warned that precautions must be taken. In the Ellerslie district where water is obtained from wells he urged that the water be boiled before drinking.

Government officials have indicated that priorities necessary to replace furnaces, wiring, meters or other equipment damaged by the flood will be forthcoming, so these essential items can be replaced.

Mayor Thomas F. Conlon last night received a telegram from W. B. Cline of Richmond, Va., representative of the Disaster Loan Corporation, saying that the corporation is ready to make a survey of the flood stricken area for the purpose of aiding rehabilitation.

The Red Cross, through its Washington office, last night announced that a survey shows 1,239 families.

Reaction to Lee Machine Is Noted

Beall, Whitworth Report Democratic Accessions in Montgomery County

Many Democratic accessions to the Republican state and congressional tickets in Montgomery county are reported by J. Glenn Beall, Republican nominee for Sixth district United States representative, and Horace P. Whitworth, of Westport, party nominee for state attorney general. A definite reaction has set in there to the Lee Democratic machine, they declare. Interest in the campaign is increasing in that county, they also report.

Both nominees devoted their attention to that county during the latter part of last week along with Theodore R. McKelvin, party nominee for governor, and Galen L. Tait, Republican state chairman. They visited numerous towns and villages throughout the county and wound up their activities with a big rally Friday night in the state armory at Kensington.

Defense Courses Are Planned Here

Classes in first aid and combatting explosive and incendiary bombs will be conducted this week for members of civilian defense units.

The class in explosives will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in city hall and the first aid instructions will be given Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in West Side school. Members of the class should bring their own bandages.

Mother Abandons Family of Five Small Children

Father in Army, Mother Leaves Them To Shift for Themselves

Five small children, abandoned by their mother while their father serves his country in the United States Army, have been taken to the Allegheny County Emergency Home, pending court action in the case.

The situation, discovered by a neighbor on Cedar street, where the family resided, was reported to the Red Cross and after investigation by the agency, Juvenile Court authorities were notified.

According to Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee, juvenile court judge, the case is one of the worst she has encountered in her four years in office. The children had been living with their mother on Cedar street and their father had joined the army. On receipt of the first government compensation as the wife of a soldier, the mother "walked off" with another man, leaving practically no food or no one to care for the five children.

After about a week, the situation was discovered and authorities took quick action. One of the children, a four-year-old girl had injured her foot, and one toe was nearly severed. She was given hospital attention and will be taken to the emergency home with her brothers and sisters on Tuesday.

A warrant has been issued for the mother to appear in juvenile court.

Driver Is Charged With Recklessness

Samuel Shipley, 71, Is Badly Hurt in Automobile Crash

A charge of reckless driving was entered against Earl Shipley, Canton, Ohio, after his car crashed head-on against a car driven by Sylvia Barnes, Bedford Pa., last Saturday night, east of here. Shipley's uncle, Samuel Shipley, 71, Bowman's addition, was seriously injured when he was thrown against the windshield of the car.

First Sgt. John H. Doud, Maryland State Police, said Earl Shipley had several teeth broken but passengers in the other car escaped injury.

Hospital attaches said the elderly Shipley was improving last night but his condition was still serious. They said he was suffering from loss of blood and severe lacerations of the face and head.

Earl Shipley will be given a hearing this morning in trial magistrates court.

War-time Program Planned in Public Schools of County

Students Will Begin New Training Schedule by Next Month

Getting in complete step with the rest of the country, youth in public schools by mid-November will be working and studying on subjects related to the all-out war effort.

According to Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, public elementary and high school programs of the county will be on a 100 percent war basis by the middle of next month.

School principals met Friday and a general program was outlined. Additional meetings will be held this week to complete the new plan.

Five Classifications

The program will fall into five classifications as follows: Air service—One year of physics and three years of mathematics; course in pre-flight aeronautics; course in automotive mechanics, radio, electricity or vocational course on maintenance and repair of aircraft.

Land service—One year of mathematics or shop mathematics; one year of laboratory science or shop science; course in radio, electricity, mechanics, machines or shop work.

Sea service—Stress on mathematics through plain trigonometry; one year of laboratory science, preferably elementary physics; course in elements of navigation, one or more shop courses.

Production service—Courses definitely pointing to preparation for work in agriculture field; course pointing to preparation for work in industry; engage in part-time paid or voluntary work in some form of production.

Community service—Courses for preparation for service at professional level including preparatory work for college; commercial, distributive, or home making courses; part-time work in community service.

A basic requirement for all services is a physical fitness program and this will be stressed, said Kopp. Kopp said he is certain the contribution by concentrating on such training will be saved much invaluable time.

The pre-induction program is primarily for juniors and seniors. For underclassmen and the elementary grades the "School at War" plan is being adopted. It includes saving to buy war bonds and stamps regularly; first aid, accident prevention, canteen service, making model airplanes, surgical dressings and participation in Civilian Defense work; collecting scrap, repairing and using old clothing, furniture and other articles; and preventing food waste.

Youth Sets Curtain Afire while Playing With Matches

South End Fire Company No. 2 was called to the home of Mrs. Virginia Early, negro, 1011 Gay street, yesterday morning at 7:45 o'clock to extinguish a curtain blaze in a vacant room. Firemen said the fire was started by a nine-year-old boy who was playing with matches.

Firemen said they were informed the child began striking matches and throwing them at the curtains in the room. The window frame was damaged and a wash stand that was near the window was burned, firemen said.

West Side P-TA Plans "Get Acquainted" Program Tonight

A crowd estimated at nearly 1,000 persons attended the flag raising and honor roll dedication yesterday afternoon on Virginia avenue which was sponsored by air raid wardens and other residents below the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in South Cumberland.

The program opened with invocation by the Rev. A. M. Gahagan, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church, and a selection by the band of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, directed by Joseph A. Pradiska.

Clair R. Mease, chairman, then announced the purpose of the program and members of the legion raised a flag, donated by Mrs.

This is another in a series of articles written by laymen of the various churches which Chatter is publishing during the "Church Loyalty Campaign" now in progress. Today's article was written by E. T. Dixon, of Centre Street Methodist church.

"In these trying days through which our people are passing, surely the need is manifest for help that can only be found in contacts with God, through sources at hand, such as the holy Bible, prayer, gathering together in the accustomed place of worship, and a life patterned after Jesus Christ. Our first line of defense is Christianity in daily living. This attainment can only be accomplished by cultivating the means at hand that assures us of God's guidance in our daily living.

"The Christian people of our city are urging upon us to observe the month of October by especially attending the Sunday preaching services and engaging in other religious activities. You can see what this means—contacts directly with God, the renewing of faith and the assurance of help in every time of need.

"With our sons and daughters in camps and abroad, all over the world, giving their lives to preserve the freedom for which our nation stands, is it not our heritage to turn to God for the spiritual help to do our duty?

"When peace does come, for which we are all praying a peace won by the allies, the order of life must be based on Christian principles if it is to endure. So let our people fall into line these October days and uphold the church by attending its services, by prayer and by participation in its activities."

An unusual recruiting appeal has been penned by Torpedo-man A. A. Fisher of the Phillipsburg, N. J., United States Navy recruiting station, according to "The Hoist" published at the San Diego, Calif., naval base. It is as follows:

"Men 17 to 50: Excursions to start soon for Yokohama. Apply for your tickets at the Phillipsburg recruiting station. No box lunches necessary. Uncle Sam will fill the bread baskets. Three meals each day and a comfortable berth. Fireworks will be displayed, but the navy needs capable men to light them off.

Are you qualified to strike the match? We have thousands who are but need more men to make this illumination the greatest in history. Join the Navy today!"

Radio Address To Open Legion Membership Drive

Criminal Trials Open in Circuit Court Here Today

Embezzlement, Arson and Assault Indictments Are on Docket

Criminal trials of the October term of court will begin today and it is expected the criminal docket may be completed this week. The October grand jury returned one of the smallest number of indictments in recent years.

Six men were arraigned Saturday and entered pleas. Other traversers are at liberty under bond and will appear in court this week.

David Orr Miller of Lonaconing was arraigned Saturday on a charge of assault with intent to murder. After entering a plea of guilty to the fifth count of the indictment, common assault, he was paroled for three years with the provision that he pay medical expenses incurred by an "innocent by-stander," wounded when a pistol was fired by Miller during a dispute.

Must Pay Injured Man

Miller was arrested several months ago after Patrick McPartland was shot in the arm. Police said Miller had obtained gasoline at a service station and a short time later returned and accused the attendant of failure to give him change. Officers were told the money had been handed to another man in the car. During the resultant argument, however, Miller fired a pistol and the bullet struck McPartland, who was standing nearby.

Under terms of the parole, Miller must pay McPartland $10 a week until a total of $225 is paid.

Charged With Shooting Woman

Frank Andrew Carey, of Frostburg, also indicted on a charge of assault with intent to murder, entered a plea of not guilty. He is accused of shooting at a woman outside a beer parlor near Frostburg.

Rush Hubert Dailey, this city, pleaded guilty to three cases of forgery.

David Edward Corbin and Ray William Kirby, charged with robbery, pleaded not guilty, through their attorney, Estel C. Kelley, appointed by the Court.

Hayden Pleads Innocent

William Thomas Hayden, 19, former sailor, charged with embezzlement, also pleaded not guilty. William McHugh, an attorney here prior to the first World War and who recently returned to practice in Cumberland, was appointed by the Court to defend him. Hayden, employed at a fish market, was sent to a bank with $218 to deposit and was apprehended two hours later in Frostburg, police said.

Six men are under indictment on charges of failing to support their parents, an unusual charge in court records here. Arthur Norris is accused of failing to support his father, Henry Norris; Bernard E. Martin, charged with failing to support his father, Joseph Martin; Adam Laupret, accused by his father, Henry Laupret; Joseph Calzone, by his mother, Mary Jane Calzone; Newton Berry by his father, Van E. Berry and John Bucklew, by his mother, Emma S. Bucklew. All of the indictments were returned on information by the state's attorney.

The indictments also include an arson charge against Clyde W. Nazelrod, accused of destroying an automobile; and Francis Philpot, charged with paternity.

Court Issues Restraining Order in Divorce Suit; Two Others Get Decrees

Associate Judge William A. Huster of circuit court has issued a restraining order to keep Harry Wotring away from his home on Christie road, after Wotring's wife, Mrs. Mary A. Wotring entered suit for divorce charging cruelty and desertion. The bill of complaint filed by Mrs. Wotring alleges the couple married in 1928 and have two children. She seeks divorce and the custody of the children.

A divorce decree has been granted to Francis E. Meagher, Frostburg, from Mrs. Vivian F. Meagher. Mrs. Evelyn J. Kidwell of Moscow has also been granted a divorce from Thomas C. Kidwell.

Mrs. Fannie B. Barrick filed a bill of complaint seeking divorce from John W. Barrick of McCoole. The couple was married in November 1940 and have one son, whose custody the mother seeks.

Farmers To Get Help with Their ODT Truck Forms

County Agent Announces Plan for Requesting War Certificates

Within the next few days, all owners of trucks registered in this county will receive forms from the Office of Defense Transportation which must be filled in and forwarded to Detroit, Mich., according to Ralph F. McHenry, county agent.

These forms will be sent to farmers who own trucks, as well as to all other truck owners, McHenry explained, and must be completed and returned if trucks are to continue in operation. Much data is requested by the ODT regarding tire size, truck load, average load hauled, average distance traveled and various other information. If the forms are not completed it will be impossible for truck owners to get gasoline, tires or replacement parts, McHenry said.

In order to assist farmers and other dealers in farm produce with the completion of these forms, a committee has been set up by the county agent, known as the County Farm Transportation committee. It is composed of Albert O'Neil, of Union Grove, chairman; R. C. Wilson, Rawlings; Marvin T. M. Hinkle, Baltimore pike, and Delmar Thompson.

The committee met Friday with John Lee Abell, of College Park, field representative of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration and studied the situation.

It was agreed that farmers might need assistance in completing forms. Clerical help will be provided October 22, 23 and 24 at the county farm agent's office, court house, to assist those requesting help.

After forms are properly completed and approved, each truck owner is to be given a certificate of war necessity. Without this certificate, which will be mailed by the Office of Defense Transportation, it will not be possible to operate any truck after December 15, 1942, McHenry said.

He urges that every farmer, upon receipt of his form, study it carefully, determine the information that must be furnished and then on one of the three dates announced, bring it to the court house for proper completion.
